1.INTRODUCTION

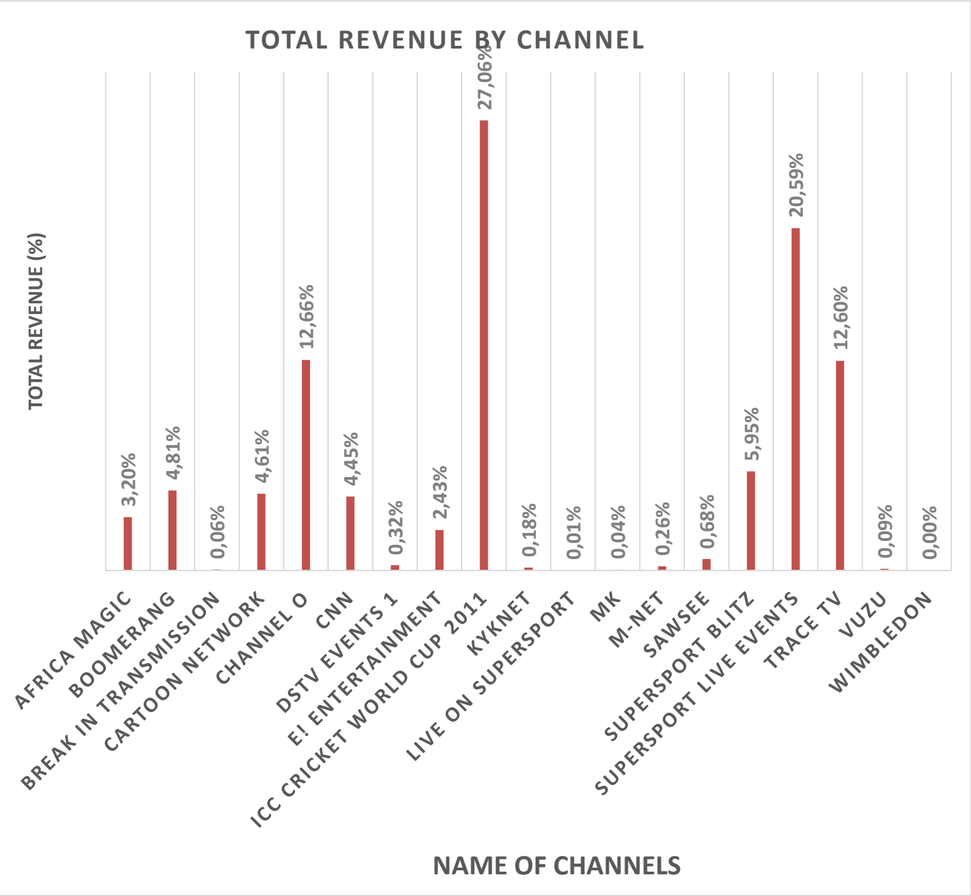
Bright TV’s CEO has set a key objective for this financial year: to grow the company’s subscription base. To support this, the dataset of Bright TV's user profiles and viewership dataset was analyzed, which contains session-level consumption records.

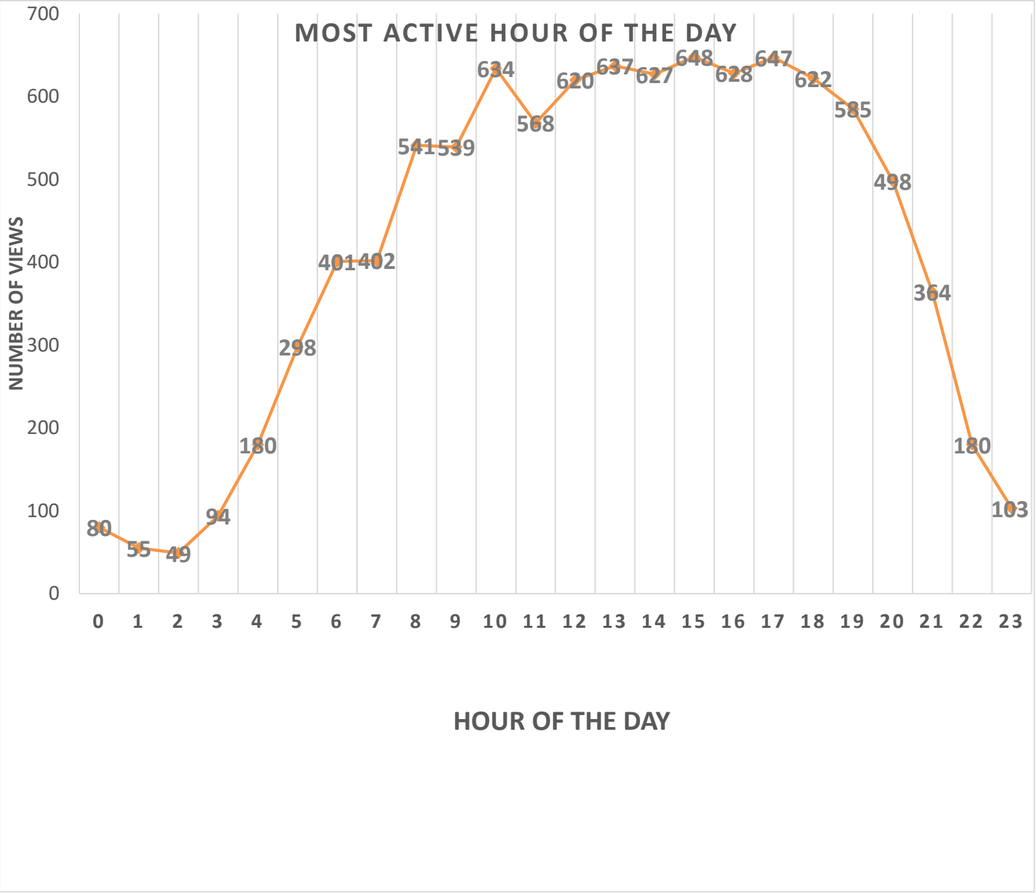
The aim of this presentation is to provide insights that will help the CEO drive user growth and increase overall consumption.

This presentation covers:
- User and usage trends
- Factors influencing consumption
- Content recommendations for low-consumption days

2. Channel revenue performance and audience activity trends

- Major sports channels such as ICC Cricket World Cup and SuperSport Live Events generate the highest revenue.
- Audience engagement peaks between 10:00 and 17:00, indicating strong daytime viewing behaviour.
- Activity begins rising early in the morning and declines significantly after 18:00.



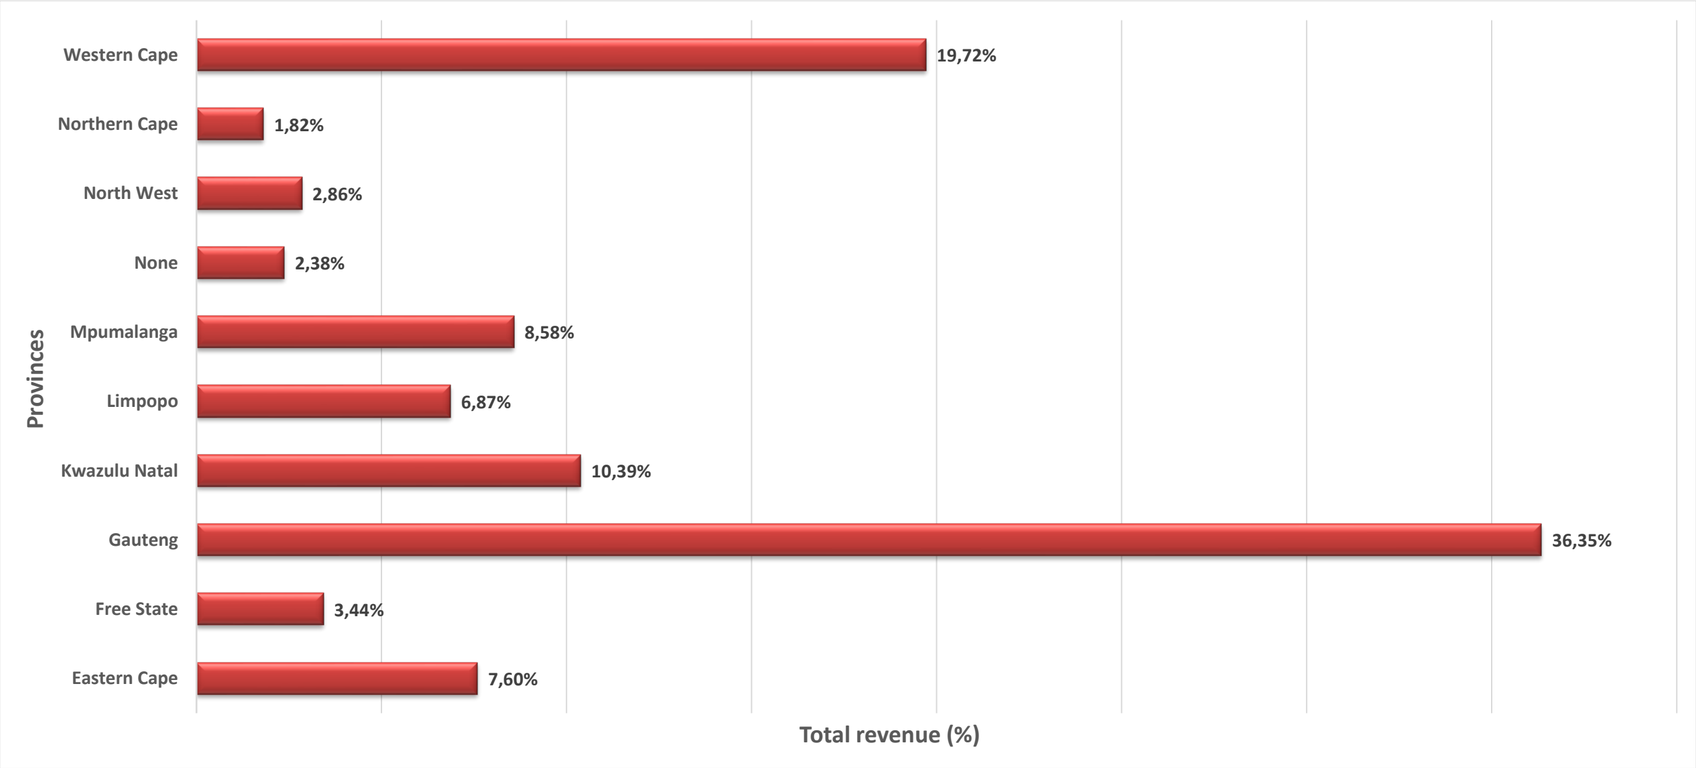


3. Revenue distribution by age group

- The highest revenue comes from adults (37%) and youth/young adults (31%) showing that these segments are Bright TV's core viewers.
- The lowest revenue comes from seniors (5%) and young viewers (7%), likely due to lower engagement or fewer subscriptions in these age groups.
- Revenue is primarily driven by Adults and Youth/Young Adults, who together account for nearly 69% of total revenue, highlighting them as the platform's key audience segment.

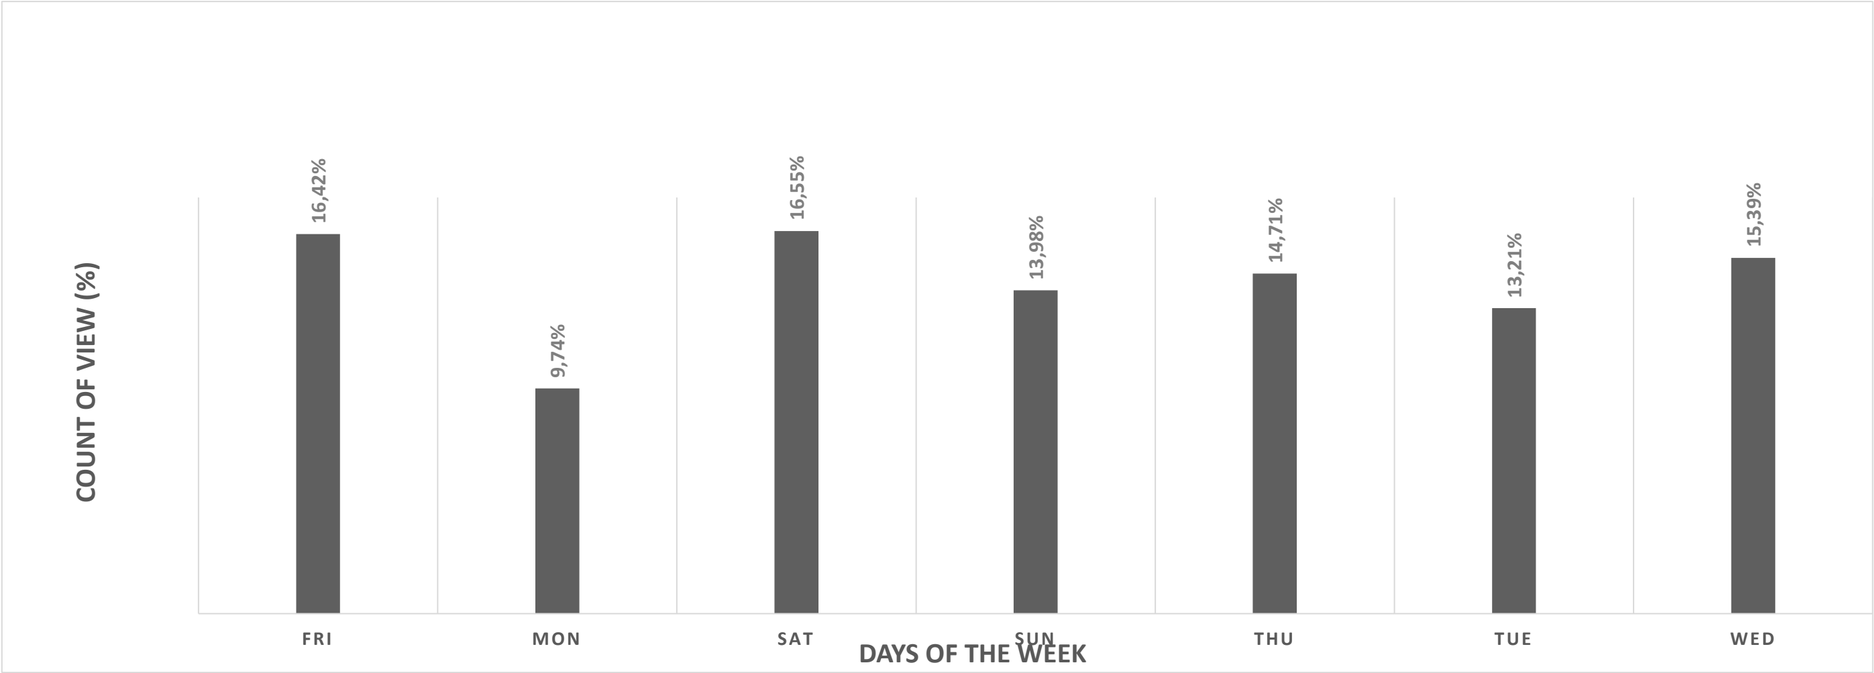
4. Revenue contribution by province

- Gauteng (36%) and Western Cape (20%) dominate revenue, showing these provinces have the strongest subscriber base and highest engagement.
- KwaZulu-Natal (10%) and Mpumalanga (9%) contribute moderately, while provinces like Northern Cape (2%), North West (3%), and Free State (3%) generate minimal revenue, suggesting lower market penetration in these areas.



5. Most active day of the week

- Viewers' activity is highest on Saturday (16.55%) and Friday (16.42%), with Wednesday (15.39%) also showing strong engagement, while Sunday (13.98%) and Tuesday (13.21%) have moderate activity, and Monday (9.74%) records the lowest.
- To maximize reach, high-value content and promotions should be prioritized on Friday and Saturday, while mid-week programming can be optimized to boost engagement on slower days like Monday.



6. Key business insights

Channel revenue performance and audience activity trends

- Major live sports channels drive the highest revenue, aligning with peak viewer activity between 10:00 and 17:00.

Revenue distribution by age group

- Adults (37%) and Youth/Young Adults (31%) are Bright TV's core audience. Seniors (5%) and young viewers (7%) show limited engagement.

Revenue contribution by province

- Gauteng (36%) and Western Cape (20%) dominate revenue, reflecting strong subscriber bases. KwaZulu-Natal (10%) and Mpumalanga (9%) are moderate contributors. Northern Cape, North West, and Free State (2–3%) show weak market penetration.

Active Hours of the Week

- Peak activity: Friday (16.42%) and Saturday (16.55%). Mid-week (Wednesday 15.39%) is strong, while Monday (9.74%) is weakest.

7. Recommendations

- Invest in high-demand sports content (e.g., secure rights for major cricket tournaments or local derbies) and reduce funding for low-performing niche channels (e.g., under-watched specialty lifestyle channels).
- Target Adults and Youth/Young Adults with tailored content (e.g., drama series for adults, reality shows or music specials for young adults) and marketing campaigns on platforms they use (e.g., TikTok, Instagram).
- Expand in underperforming provinces using localized promotions (e.g., regional discounts in Northern Cape), partnerships (e.g., local radio stations in North West), or community events (e.g., sponsorships in Free State).
- Optimize scheduling by placing premium content on high-engagement days (e.g., new movie premieres on Fridays or sports recap shows on Saturdays) and improving Monday programming (e.g., launching a new talk show or comedy block).
- Match content to peak hours by releasing new content during morning build-up (e.g., morning news, highlights packages between 6–9 AM) and featuring major live events or promotions between 10 AM–5 PM (e.g., mid-day sports matches or reality show marathons).
- Reduce investment in late-night slots where engagement is low (e.g., replace expensive shows after 11 PM with returns or automated programming).
